

Discover How To Cut The Time You Spend On Your Research By Half...

Increasingly Royal Colleges, universities and other types of research institutions have discovered that they can carry out more projects by simply outsourcing time consuming and resource intensive elements of their research. Most of the time, this consists of designing questionnaires, sending them out and coping to process and collect all the data. As a researcher you want the ability to spend more time to analyse results. With DCC, we give you that time by removing the burden of collecting data and give you added peace of mind by giving you the best value no matter what your budget.

"...The annual consultant census usually takes us 5-6 months to print, scan and verify the forms. Now it only takes 2-3 months...My assistant's job isn't tied to scanning forms so he can focus more on data quality and analysis.

Overall working with DCC has meant that my department can take on more projects and focus on how we can make good use of the information we collect rather than spending time on processing. This has helped immensely given that there are only two of us!"
